About the Artists: The Island Gallery is delighted to present new work from some of the finest artists of Bainbridge Island and the Northwest in the genres of fine wood furniture and sculpture, ceramics, and paintings and prints. Work from Bainbridge artists, Shown above:

Upper left: Mauve Mountain, Jen Till. A wonderful new series of Jen's popular landscape oil paintings will be on display.

Center: Text From A Lost Tribe, Jenny Andersen. Perennial Island favorite ceramic artist Jenny Andersen's series of wall plaques, which were presented in a well-received retrospective of her work at the Bainbridge Island Museum of Art last summer, will be on display in the Gallery through 2014.

Lower left: Black Walnut Bench, Erik Lindbergh. This Bainbridge Island native brings us a beautiful bench crafted from nine pieces of local black walnut, ten years in the making.

New Works - Fine Furniture & Sculpture:

Nathan Christopher, Bainbridge Island: An I-beam and live-edge timber bench.

L. Wendy Dunder, Portland, Oregon: New illuminated sculpture (lamps), some of which are collaborative pieces.

Steve Humphrey, Bainbridge Island: Metal work on collaborative works, including lamps and a fascinating walnut sculpture which can serve as a room divider.

Ken Lundemo, Seabeck: Wood, ceramic and bronze sculpture

Chris Mroz, Gig Harbor: Owner of Pure Timber, one of the biggest producers of cold-bend hardwood in the United States, Chris creates remarkable chairs and whimsical wood sculpture.

Kris Skotheim, Bainbridge Island: His metalwork and artistic sensibilities can be seen in the clean lines of a western red cedar bench.

Donald Smith, Seattle: New live edge slabs for table/dining use.

Alan Vogel, Bainbridge Island: A stunning whiskey cabinet and a wall-mounted wood sculptural piece.
